

HUERTA DELEGATES MAKE UNREASONABLE DEMANDS ON THE UNITED STATES

Mediation Headquarters, Niagara, May 25.—Demands made on the American government by Huerta delegates today pointed to a quick end of negotiations, unless Huertistas recede. They want the United States to get a pledge from Carranza to cease fighting at once and an agreement that Huerta will be allowed to run for the presidency in the general election. Between now and the time of such election mediators would arrange for a provisional government. Such arrangement would rob the constitutionalists of a victory and there is no likelihood that the United States will consider making necessary representations to Carranza. The Mexicans are playing a bold game to get a settlement before Huerta is overthrown. The mediators are worried over the outlook.

Historic Forces at Work in Mexico.

To have recognized Huerta and given him moral support, would have been to deny all the proper tendencies of the age in which we live. The civil war must have come in any case, for the people of Mexico would not have submitted to a government of tyranny established through treachery and assassination. To balance the personal character of the bandit Villa against that of the soldier Huerta, was not to arrive at any conclusions worth the attention of the student of politics and history. Villa came to the forefront because he happened to be a fighting man who had identified himself with an irrepressible revolution. This revolution means the break-up of an old regime. Whatever the results may be as regards the issues of war, there can be no return to the kind of government in Mexico that formerly maintained order and that Huerta would have tried to perpetuate. As a result of this conflict there must be the clear beginning of a system that will develop the people into a citizen. Mexico needs reconstruction. Those American military and civilian experts who have accomplished splendid police, sanitary, educational and other reforms in Porto Rico, Cuba, Panama and the Philippines could render assistance of almost inconceivable value to our Mexican neighbors if they should be set at work to direct the reconstruction of Mexican life and government. Perhaps a peaceable way may some day be opened for the performance of this desirable service. But the time has not yet arrived, though intervention may hasten it.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for May.

Takes Joy Ride Wrecks Automobile

Stealing an automobile truck belonging to the Chero-Cola Company out of the garage while Manager Wells was at Sunday School, Willie Ethridge, a negro boy, took "some joy ride" yesterday. With two of his friends in the truck the negro went out East Main street until an elevation was reached. The steering gear was loose, and the chauffeur could not control the car. It was wrecked. Manager Wells says $50 will cover the damages.

Best Time to Cry.

(St. Nicholas.)

There are millions of children in the world who want to do just the right thing the very best thing, but they do not always know what just the right thing is, and sometimes they cannot tell the very best thing from the very worst thing.

Now I have often thought that there are children who cry now and then at the wrong time; and I have asked many of the older people, but none of them could tell me the best time to cry.

But the other day I met a man older and wiser, than any of the rest. He was very old and very wise, and he told me:

"It is bad luck to cry on Monday.

"To cry on Tuesday makes the eyes red.

"Crying on Wednesday is bad for children's heads and for the heads of older people.

"It is said that if a child begins to cry on Thursday he will find it hard to stop.

"It is not best for children to cry on Friday—it makes them unhappy.

"Never cry on Saturday—it is too busy a day.

"Tears shed on the Sabbath are salt and bitter.

"Children should on no account cry at night; the nights are for sleep.

"They may cry whenever else they please, but not at any of those times, unless it is for something serious."

I wrote down the rules just as the old man gave them to me. Of

Sidelights on Mexico

By a Veteran.

Washington, May 25.—The report that Private Parks was temporarily insane from a poisoned cigarette given him by a Mexican girl when he rode straight into the Mexican lines on the back of one blooded horse and leading another, is highly creditable to those who have traveled in the "land of the greasers." The Mexican women have often given this poison to their lovers out of jealousy.

This herb, is neem, or toloachi, and the plants spread in many slightly different species almost all over the earth. It is our Jimson weed. The Hindu women use it for the same purpose as their Mexican sisters, to cause their lovers to lose their minds. Hindu robbers mix it in candy and give it by some tricks to the inmates of a house. The eaters of the candy are thrown into a deep sleep, under cover of which the burglars loot.

Tolouchi is a low-growing plant with white flowers and curious seed vessels projecting much like the horns of a steer. The seeds are pounded and mixed in the tobacco of a cigarette. Usually melancholic idleness and slumber are induced but sometimes there is violent madness and even quick death. It has been used by Mexican men to kill a rival.

Tolouchi must not be confused with marihuana, of which Mexicans are so fond that they form clubs to smoke it. The Rio Grande border authorities are active in checking the use of marihuana for it often arouses the basest passions and leads to lust and bloodshed.

Other Danger Besides Bullets.

That there are other dangers than bullets in Mexico, Stonewall Jackson learned in the Mexican war according to the account of Lieutenant Colonel Henderson. Jackson fell beneath the charm of a Mexican beauty.

"Who the magnet was he never confessed, but that he went near to losing his heart to some charming senorita he more than once acknowledged, and he took much trouble to appear to advantage in her eyes. . . . He not only learned to dance, an accomplishment which must have taxed his perseverance to the utmost, but he spent some months in learning Spanish; and it is significant that to the end of his life he retained a copious vocabulary of those tender diminutives which fall so gracefully from Spanish lips."

Wotherspoon an "Arm Chair Soldier."

In the heat of bitter controversy William Wallace Wotherspoon, major general and head of the general staff, has been called an "arm chair soldier." But this was a grave injustice to perhaps the most efficient man in the army. If Wotherspoon sits in an arm chair, there is a telephone at his elbow, two rows of push buttons on the desk before him, and a battalion of subordinates near by who step mightily lively when W. W. W. speaks.

The general staff is the brains of the army. It is the office organization in time of peace and war for all the land fighting forces of the United States.

Wotherspoon has always been the thinker, the director. For this reason his nomination as major general in large measure that the general staff was reorganized. Before Major General Leonard Wood, backed by Wotherspoon, put up their great fight, all correspondence of the general staff had to go thru the adjutant general's department. This purely clerical department saddled a kind of veto upon the general staff. If it didn't like the general staff's orders they didn't go through. Imagine such a bit of red tape about the Department of War!

But if Wotherspoon has not had so much field experience as some Brigadier Generals he at least can say he served Uncle Sam at a tenderer age. He enlisted in the navy as a boy despite parental opposition—his family is of prominence in the District of Columbia. A naval officer told him once he had made a mistake—he could never become a general or admiral by entering the service that way.

Wotherspoon, fired with warlike spirit, pondered this and finally saw the light. He must go to West Point, or Annapolis. The naval officer secured an appointment at the Army Academy for the energetic young sailor and in 1873 the "2 W." graduated.

The only charge that could be brought against him by Senator Bristow when opposing his elevation over Funston, Bliss and Pershing was that he had depended upon personal popularity rather than actual fighting for his rank. But Bristow was forced to admit him a splendid administrator. He had been a member of the general staff since its creation. He was for a time War College head. In the War College officers are trained in strategy. Wotherspoon is regarded as a high authority on infantry tactics. He is a man of great force and intellect.

He must retire in November of this year by the operation of the age limit law despite he is in the most enviable health and positively booming. If there's a scrap on along the Rio Grande, however, it's a good guess his fine old clockwork brain will stay right where it is.

Dead Pig Has An Elephant Snout

A freak pig, having an elephant snout and forehead and chin that resembled that of a human being, was brought to town last night by a farmer who lives eight miles from Dothan. BALK ATTEMPT TO SMUGGLE AMMUNITION

Vera Cruz, May 25.—The attempt to smuggle ammunition to Mexicans in Vera Cruz was balked today when American outposts halted two milkmen and found their milk cans filled with cartridges. American officers are convinced that a plot had been formed for Mexicans in Vera Cruz to attack American soldiers at the same time Federalists attack from the outside.

Notification sent to Washington by the Mexican government that it is necessary to strengthen the army outside of Vera Cruz to resist the attack by Rebels is merely an evasion of armistice and reinforcements is believed are intended to fight Americans.

INVENTING DOTHAN

N. T. Cobb, known to many people here as managing editor for several years of the Prospect Journal is now secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Dothan, Ala. Dothan occupies a strategic business position as a railroad center and the natural headquarters of an important region in southeastern Alabama. The business interests in the city have organized a strong movement for the locating of industries and a general program for the city and neighboring country. It already has a good start as an industrial and trade center. It has five railroad arms and is busily extending its interests in various lines. Dothan is a field with fine prospects. Mr. Cobb's newspaper training is a fine preparation for his new field of usefulness.—The Rockford, Ill., Register-Gazette.

It is a worthy cod liver preparation in which a physician may have every confidence."

Dr. L. B. Bouchelle, of Thomasville, Ga., says: "I have used Vinol in my family and in my general practice with the most satisfactory results. It is exceedingly beneficial to those afflicted with bronchial or pulmonary troubles, and to create strength."

Dr. W. N. Rand of Evans Mills, N. Y., says: "I want to say that I have used and prescribed Vinol in my practice and it will do all you claim for it and more."

THREE THOUSAND REBELS ENTER STATE OF VERA CRUZ

Printing the News.

From the Wichita Beacon.

The most distinguished compilation that has yet been paid to a western newspaper was paid when the Colorado Fuel and Iron company sued the Rocky Mountain News and the Denver Times for $500,000 damages. These papers had been printing with truthful detail the tragic story at Ludlow where women and children have been killed in the mining trouble, where flesh and blood have been held to be cheaper than business gain. John C. Shaffer, new proprietor of the Rocky Mountain News and Denver Times, takes the position that this suit is a fight against the freedom of the press.

The story of Colorado's mining troubles has been a tragic and sorrowful story and an effort has been made by a special committee of the chamber of commerce of Denver to doctor the news so as to minimize the horror of the situation. Mr. Shaffer has courageously refused to do this and he must now stand a libel suit probably before a jury that will be deeply prejudiced in favor of doctoring news.

LETTER FROM DR. DALTON ON BETTER FARMING MOVEMENT

To The Editor:

Now that the farmers of Houston county are showing so marked a degree of interest in the movement for better farming, I would like to suggest a somewhat different plan from that already inaugurated by the farmers in connection with the Dothan Chamber of Commerce.

The business men of the different towns in Houston county are vitally interested in the prosperity of their farming territory, and what I would suggest is that each town contribute a certain amount to be raised by the business men toward a fund with which to employ a farm demonstrator in connection with the government. This plan is now in successful operation by the Hecomb Better Farming Association, which has been in existence a year, and the results have far exceeded our early expectations.

In the association, each farmer is assessed $2.50 per year, and the towns of Hecomb, Geneva, and Samsen are assessed $100 each; Black and Coffee Springs, $100 each. In this way, a fund is raised sufficient to pay the salary of the demonstrator, and to furnish him with a means of transportation.

A meeting will be called in Dothan probably the middle of July, and representative business men in every town in the county will be invited to attend to discuss this important question.

In the meantime, I would like to hear, through the papers, from any business men or farmers as to their views on this subject.

Washington, May 25.—The administration is worried over the news that three thousand rebels have entered the state of Vera Cruz and Federalists are facing the American lines meeting artillery. The situation there has caused more concern than the prospect of mediation running into a fruitless deadlock.

No secret is made in administration circles that President Wilson intends to keep the army in Mexico until the country is pacified. It is hoped this could be done without a battle, but increase of both soldiers and rebels close to Vera Cruz is causing anxiety.

Dothan, Is Report

According to a story told on the streets last night, "the man who never fails" worked Dothan very carefully.

He came to Dothan from nearby town, and at the same time took a certain business. The business district he reported to pay the cash man. The other man went to a barber shop and had their "all dotted up" department of pay for service. He then went to a restaurant and ate a hearty dinner, for which he refused to pay. The report of the newspaper was that he could not be contacted by the police and they report of a man who had a barber for a partner according to their statement.

FEDERAL JUDGE CLAYTON.

Commercial Appeal.

The appointment of Representative Henry D. Clayton to a Federal judgeship in Alabama lets down another political bar in that state. The filing of the congressional vacancy will be the next Democratic event of importance to Alabamians. When Senator Joseph E. Johnston died, Clayton and Glass, subsequently, were slated to fill his place, but because of the hitch occasioned by the new senatorial primary law, neither one was seated by the Senate. Representative Clayton announced that he would be a candidate at the regular choice of senators when the state and new national laws were made to coincide.

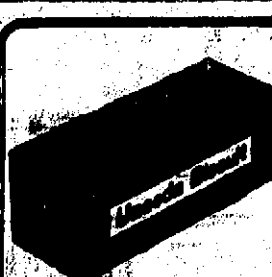

But this was the race Mr. Underwood had planned to run against Mr. Hebron and the administration took such a keen interest in the success of Underwood that a reappointed expression of his preference was conveyed to Representative Clayton. President Wilson actually gave him to understand that he depended on the Clayton advance to carry on certain his legislation—especially that relating to trusts—and that he would regard it as a great misfortune should Mr. Clayton elect to leave the House and make the race for the vacant senate seat.

No doubt Mr. Wilson was entirely sincere in his position and his sincerity for he is not given to promises and quibbles. But the fact remains that the Senate race was settled and Underwood snatched at the top. Representative Clayton's presence in the house did not seem very necessary. Possibly Wilson will say that the anti-trust legislation could be shaped by other hands; possibly he thought that under any circumstances Clayton would remain in the House until the expiration of his congressional term, which occurs next year, and that by that time he would have served his purpose. Either of these explanations would suffice for the appointment of Clayton to a federal judgeship in his native State of Alabama.

But instead of serving out his term in Washington, he has announced that he will this week resign for his new position as federal judge, which act will, of course, end his career in Washington.

This will leave the judiciary committee, of which he was chairman, without a head until the election of a new chairman, who will undoubtedly be Webb of North Carolina. Even the anti-trust legislation will be in new hands, so far as the chairman is concerned, after this date.

There is no intimation as to how Clayton's move up to the bench will be received, but it is pronounced that a number of the Clayton family have played the political game, and so his new position will be a new one for the family.

in Washington may be, down in Alabama there is a general taking of notice among politicians, and the bushes are already beginning to rustle with the foregathering of candidates for the vacated seat in the house of representatives.

There is always something happening in the political life of a great and growing commonwealth.

Uncle Henry D. Clayton says he will in a few days give up his seat in Congress and return to Alabama, where he will fill the position of Federal Judge for the balance of his natural life, by virtue of appointment from President Wilson. There is something unexpressively sad about this announcement, and one cannot refrain from allowing his sympathy to go out in all of its abandon to President Wilson, who said that he could not get along without Uncle Henry in Congress—that he needed him there above all others to make his administration a success. But that was back in the days when Clayton was a candidate for the senate against Underwood, and it was necessary to clear the track for Underwood. The Supply of Babies.

From T14-B11.

It has been computed that about 26,000,000 babies are born into the world each year. The rate of production is therefore about 70 per minute, or more than one for ever beat of the clock.

With the one a-second calculation every reader is familiar, but it is not every one who stops to calculate what this means when it comes to a year's supply. It will, therefore, probably startle a good many persons to find, on the authority of a well known statistician that, could the infants of a year be ranged in a line in cradles, the cradles would extend around the globe.

This same writer looks at the matter in a most picturesque light. He imagines the babies being carried past a given point in their mothers' arms, one by one and the procession being kept up night and day until the last hour in the 12th month had passed by. A sufficiently liberal rate is allowed, but even in going past at the rate of 20 a minute, 1,200 an hour, during the entire year, the reviewer at his post would have seen only the sixth part of the infantile host.

In other words, the babe that had to be carried when the tramp began would be able to walk when River as soon as they noted that it had a mere fraction of its comrades had reached the reviewer's post, and when the year's supply of babies was drawing to a close there.

BANKING.

Most text books and business colleges that attempt to teach banking at all teach only the systems used in New York, Chicago, etc. The Flynt teaches the same, also the banking of smaller towns. It does so by having each student fill every official position in these banks, and actually do the work of each department in the minutest detail.

From start to finish interest never lags. No more classes to go to places without finishing. The student who does not finish is an exception; and those who do finish such a course do not have to learn over when they leave our school.

Kings Have Become Casual.

(From the St. Paul Pioneer Press.)

Kings have become men, ordinary men. The world has been sufficiently interested in the critical condition, the possibly fatal results of the operation of King Gustave of Sweden. But it is not as it was 50 years ago when all the world regarded kings as important entities and their possible taking off as crucial in international affairs; and part of the world, the very democratic part, looked upon kings as menaces and their passing as good riddance. No change in international affairs would result if King Gustave had not endured his operation.

The world has developed a kindly attitude toward kings, almost a pitying attitude; it is interested in the welfare of Gustave as it would be in that of any other man of noted position. But it has not felt that any crisis would be invited through the unhappy results of this operation. In truth there is scarce a sovereign today whose death would affect national or international affairs. Even Austria-Hungary, which but a few years ago was destined by all the prophets for a breakup on the passing of Franz Josef, will in all probability endure that shock without fatal results. Perhaps Spain will suffer most keenly if sudden fate should summon Alfonso, and yet Spain must progress as she is progressing in order to remain in the family of nations.

Unmistakable Proof.

The estate owned by the late Col. Crowninshield in a New England seaport town adjoins the pasture of a sturdy farmer, relates the New York Press. A valuable dog owned by the colonel used to get into the pasture and chase the farmer's cows. Finally he went to Col. Crowninshield and requested that the annoyance be stopped.

"How do you know it is my dog?" asked Col. Crowninshield, rather unsatisfactorily.

"How do I know?" exclaimed the farmer, with rising indignation. "Why, I've seen him time and again!"

"You must bring me better proof," replied the colonel, coldly.

"All right, sir," said the farmer, in no uncertain tone. "The next time the dog bothers my cows I'll bring you all the proof you want—in a wheelbarrow."

Doing Right Is Not Surrender.

From Farm, Stock and Home.

These patriots, many being inspired by the steel trust, Standard Oil and the shipping combine, who howl and snap at President Wilson's heels because he has surrendered to England by advocating the repeal of free trade, will do well to turn back to the Mason and Slidell affair of 1861. Mason and Slidell it will be remembered, were Confederate states commissioners, dispatched to England and France on State business. The English ship on which they were was stopped in mid-ocean by the United States frigate San Jacinto and Mason and Slidell taken off and brought in as prisoners of war. England demanded the return of Mason and Slidell and an apology from the United States. The demand was made strongly and offensively. It was backed by a clear and unmistakable threat of war. The sentiment of the country, of many congressmen, of members of Lincoln's cabinet, was for war. Seward, secretary of state, wrote a reply that, if it had ever been sent, would have brought England's navy to our shores. That it was not sent, that congress and the country was brought to sober second thought, was due to the calm, clear, common sense of Lincoln. Alone he stood for the immediate repatriation of the mistake of the commander of the San Jacinto. He told his countrymen that they were in the wrong. That England was within her right. Yet, Lincoln was abused, ridiculed for his "surrender to England."

Correcting a wrong course of action is never surrender. It is ability to do this that marks the civilized man from the savage. How far would mankind have progressed from the stone age if every one had persisted in carrying out his own individual way, irrespective of its effects for good or evil on the rest of his fellowmen?

Have you gone, as I have gone, in the hours of your pain, To the sea where the ships glitter by?

Have you stood, as I've stood, in the withering rain, When your heart was too broken to cry?

Have you watched, as I've watched, every vessel grow small In the east, where the sky clambers down?

Then you've felt, as I've felt, a great pity for all Who are locked in the grip of the town;

And you will, when you win to a wealth unconfined, And you sail for lands overseas, Praise a moment to think of us still left behind,

And you'll breathe a wee blessing for me, So that when I go down to the sea and look out, To the land where my fondest dreams lie,

I will hail you my kinsman in one silent shout, And I know you will answer my cry, —Edmund Leamy in Philadelphia, Public Ledger.

THE DOTHAN EAGLE. Sweet little maid with winsome eyes, That laugh all day through the tangled hair,

Gazing with baby look so wise, Over the arm of the velvet chair; Deeper than you are glad to me, Deeper than you think me he same,

Since in your laughing face I see Eyes that tell of the other one, Here where the sunlight softly gleams,

Driving the sleet of the winter storm, Round your head the ruddy light glows on the gold from your tresses spun,

But deep in the drifting snow tonight, Over the head of the other one, Hold me close as you snugly stand, Watching the dying embers shine,

Then shall I feel another hand That nestled once in this hand of mine, Poor little hand, so cold and chill, Shorn from the light of stars and sun, Clasping the withered roses still, That hide the face of the other, one.

Laugh, little maid, while laugh you may, Tomorrow comes to us all, I know; Better perhaps for her to stay Under the robe of drifting snow, Sing while you may your baby songs,

Sing till your baby days are done, But oh, the ache of the heart that longs Night and day for the other one. —Harry Thornton Peck.

MISS GAINES' RECITAL.—The piano recital given on Saturday afternoon by little Miss Katharine Gaines, was enjoyed by a large audience.

When it is remembered that Miss Gaines is only 4 years old, and that her first lesson was taken in September, her playing is considered really wonderful.

Ten numbers were played from memory; Miss Gaines showed careful training and unusual talent. She was assisted by Misses Lucile Cotton and Elizabeth Farmer.

ANNOUNCEMENT PARTY.—The following clipped from a Troy paper, will be of much interest to friends here of Mr. Joshua Couch, whose marriage to Miss Maggie White of Troy occurs June 24th:

"Mrs. H. T. Babcock was hostess to the Thursday afternoon forty-two club at her beautiful home on Elm street. On entering the pretty hall punch was served from a cut glass bowl, backed with Dorothy Perkins roses. Proceeding gracefully at this attractive table were Mrs. Gus Henderson and Miss Mahon of San Angelo, Texas. After the arrival of the guests the announcement was made of the approaching marriage of Miss Margaret White and Mr. Joshua J. Couch. Miss White was lovely in a blue crepe de chine gown fashioned entrain and she was a picture of girlish loveliness as she stood receiving the good wishes of a host of her friends. Mrs. Babcock was beautiful in a gown of lavender silk and lace. Dainty score cards were given each guest by little Miss Sarah Miller Babcock the attractive daughter of the hostess. Ten tables were arranged for the game of "42." After an interesting hour the scores were counted and to Mrs. Josh Copeland was awarded the prize, a pair of silk hose. To Miss White an exquisite bride's book was presented in which the guests wrote their names. On each table was a delightful assortment of home made candies, a delicious salad and ice course was enjoyed. The afternoon was one of rare pleasure, but the many friends of Mrs. White regret that her marriage will take her away from the city. She is one of the most popular girls ever reared in Troy and Mr. Couch is congratulated upon winning her for his bride."

FEDERATION NEWS.—Ten thousand clubwomen are expected to attend the biennial to be held in Chicago from June 9 to 14. There are a million clubwomen in the Federation of Women's Clubs. Every woman appointed an delegate from her club must be well upon the work of her organization, and every organization more or less advanced along the line of woman's work. The ten thousand women will represent brains, position, progress and politics.

Those not in the General Federation of Women's Clubs have but little idea of the magnitude of the plan of organization. The approaching biennial will be the largest in scope of any that has gone before it.

The Federation was organized in 1889 and the first convention held at Chicago in 1892. There have been six presidents at one time, Atlanta having been represented: at one time by Mrs. Rebecca Douglas Lowe, now Mrs. Guntion who founded the Atlanta Woman's Club in 1895.

Members who have not already done so, are requested to bring their annual dues.

NOT PAINT.—The worst mistake in painting is not putting off. That costs about 10 per cent; you keep your money a year and pay 10 per cent for it. Paint would have to come down 25 per cent to make 10 per cent on the job, for wages do not go down.

The worst mistake is "cheap" paint. It costs from 50 per cent to 100, first cost, and another in wear. What a far "cheap" is "put off" is bad enough; "cheap" is ten times worse.

SPORTING NEWS

By Frank G. Menke.

New York, May 25.—A red-headed person named

Hughley Jennings, who hails from Detroit, and who is well known in vaudeville circles, is abroad in this land just now with a new monologue, entitled "Detroit's Gonna Cop Sure."

In his home town this Jennings fellow, made a great hit with his chatter, but in a number of other cities where he has appeared, especially in Philadelphia, U. S. A., no laughs have greeted his utterances, despite the fact that Mister Jennings is the funniest baseball person outside of jail.

"We are the people this year—woo-ah!" remarks Jennings. "From the appearance of things now, it seems that all persons desiring to gaze upon the world series games this fall will have to spend half of the time in Detroit. But there's no better place to spend half of your time—nor all of your time—than Detroit. Beautiful city—very beautiful."

"The folks over in Philadelphia think the Athletics have the greatest infield in the country. And the pirates think theirs is just about as good. Well, wait until my infield gets to working together a little longer—and then the experts will not be so hasty in slipping the medals to the Athletics and Pirates."

"Burns, my first baseman, is a wonder. He can hit, run and can get anything that comes within a mile of him. And in addition he is brainy. Kavanagh, at second, is one of the most brilliant all-around players that has broken into the game in many years."

"I've got a couple of pretty good catchers this year and Covalt's rounds out a steady, reliable pitching staff."

"Of course, I am a bit weak in the outfield. The only fellows I have out there are Bobby Veach, Sam Crawford and a fellow named Cobb. Sam is getting pretty old now, and he can't average more than four or five hits a day, but he served us well in years gone by, and we are keeping Sam just to demonstrate to the people that there is some sentiment in baseball."

"Cobb looks like a 'comer' this year. Earlier in the season I thought of asking for wolvers on him because he was batting only a trifle over .300 but he is doing a little better now and I guess I'll keep him."

"All in all, I think my team is stronger in every way than that which grabbed the busting in 1907, 1908, and 1909."

Down in Cincinnati, which is on the Ohio River, the villagers are thinking of presenting Charles Lincoln Herzog with a brewery—the highest honor that Cincinnati can bestow on a person.

Charles went down there, against the advice of friends and the pleading of his relatives, and by infusing his mediocre collection of athletes with some of his own fire and enthusiasm, has succeeded in getting them to put up the best article of baseball that has been seen in that vicinity for a considerable period.

Of course Cincinnati fans don't expect Charles to win the pennant for them. If he did, the whole town would die of shock. And a lot of persons in Cincinnati aren't prepared to die just yet. The supply of asbestos down there is too limited. All they hoped for was a team that could put up an interesting and scrappy exhibition of baseball. And that's just what the Reds are doing.

Walter Johnson has been discovered. "Some Boston player has just learned that 'all Johnson has is a ger."

Johnson May Lose Speed. Some persons think that Johnson may some day lose his speed because of the terrific strain he puts on his arm with every ball pitched. It's a foil swing that saves length of the arm. But even Johnson does lose his speed he is able to linger under the tent for many years to come. Johnson has brains—the valuable asset a pitcher can have. If he loses the hop on his fast point where he no longer is able to use speed, he will depend on his head to fool the batters.

Johnson knows so much about pitching, so much about the art of fooling a batter that blinding is necessary. He can perfect a ball and turn the trick, or he can resort to a mixture of curves, which combined with his almost unerring knowledge of the weakness of various batters will enable him to fool them.
